What stories from your life would help her know that things were going to be all right in the end (and if it's not all right, then it's not the end - love that line from The Best Marigold Hotel movie!) What advice would you give her? What insights could you share? This nostalgic little journal will be a special place to keep those thoughts and stories. A photo of you as a little girl will be featured on the cover of your book and will remind you to appreciate the woman you have become.
